AGENDA FOR TELEPHONE INTERVIEW

Sir:

I would like to request a telephone interview on May 12, 2004. Please consider the following proposed amendment:

1. A method in a data processing system for searching for information, the method comprising:
responsive to receiving an input string, parsing the input string for a universal resource identifier and a search string, wherein the universal resource identifier and the search string are separated from each other in the input string by a selected delimiter; and searching for the information corresponding to the search string through a Web [[page]] site identified by the universal resource identifier, wherein the searching step comprises:
locating a search object [[on]] within the Web [[page]] site; and using the search object to search for the information within the Web site.

Also, please consider the following topics for discussion:

- Snyder teaches a Web search engine with graphic snapshots. However, Snyder does not teach locating a search object within a Web site and using the search object to search for the information within that same Web site. Rather, Snyder uses conventional search engine techniques to locate information. Snyder also uses "robots" to "crawl" the Web. Therefore, Snyder teaches away from the present invention, because Snyder teaches providing a search object to search for information rather than using a search object that is already located within the Web site.

The Examiner is invited to call at the below-listed telephone number to confirm or reschedule the requested telephone interview.
